The image shows a template for a 3.4m angled flag. It features a vertical rectangular shape with a curved top edge. Three lines define the boundaries: a purple line at the outermost edge, a black line in the middle, and a red dotted line at the innermost edge. The red dotted line is set back from the black line, creating a margin. The purple line is further out, defining the total width of the flag. The top edge of the flag is curved, while the bottom edge is straight. The left and right edges are vertical.
